

To whom it may concern,

The letter is written in rebuttal to the accusations cited in a letter I received from Principal Bjorn Paige on May 10, 2017

The letter states I gave a female student a shoulder rub/massage. That is absolutely false. I have never given any student a shoulder rub or massage.

The letter states I placed my arms on the legs of a female student sitting crossed legged while helping her with homework. That is again absolutely not true. I have never touched the legs of any female student.

The letter states I have made statements about how female students dress “especially when they are wearing something revealing”. That is absolutely false. I do not make comments about how females dress, especially when they wear provocative clothing for exactly this reason. I do not want to be taken incorrectly so I choose to say nothing at all.

It should be noted that the female student (along with her friend group) behind these accusations had been recently caught cheating on a statistics test and received a zero. She has also had her phone taken away by me three times in the last couple of weeks. One strategy to deflect focus on missteps you have made is to discredit/slander your detractor. I believe that is what the student in question is attempting with these accusations.

It states in the letter that I was ordered to attend “sexual harassment training”. This is also not true. I never attended one nor was I ordered to do so.

I am deeply concerned that for all my alleged comments they were not able to produce a single quote. It is my hope that the administration will see these slanderous accusations for the spiteful untruths they are and that the letter I received from Mr. Paige be removed from my file.

Donn Boyd
